

Weekly Book Bulletin!

Each week we will bring you suggestions of online sites to visit to keep your children reading throughout the lockdown period.

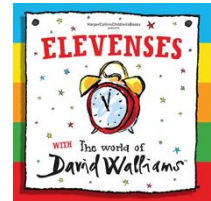

Let's start with something very local... Holsworthy Town Library!

Our local library has a brilliant Facebook page with lots of reading, craft and competition information. But also by contacting Mary via email (holsworthy.library@librariesunlimited.org.uk) she will be able to help your child continue with their Book Track challenge or indeed join in with the challenge. A fun way to keep the reading going.

Most of you may have come across David Williams' Elevenses. Each day at 11am David Williams' reads stories to the nation's children. His website is brilliant and well worth a visit (www.worldofdavidwalliams.com).

Finally for this week a site that has lots of free reading books for children all listed for age appropriateness. This site is part of the Renlearn family that provide our online Accelerated Reader that the children use in school. They have quite literally thousands of books to choose from. Find them at: readon.myon.co.uk and click on the start reading button.

Look out for next week's update... happy reading!
